With its tree-lined fairways and friendly ambiance, Hartland Glen Golf Course has a comfortable Up North feel.

It's that character, coupled with special rates, which draws golfers to Hartland Glen.

Golf professional Nick Kouba said the popular golf venue offers something for everyone, from the novice golfer to the more experienced.

There are 36 holes of golf available on two courses. The North Course is very player-friendly, he said.

It features ponds, wetlands and mature trees.

The South Course has tree-lined fairways as well as ponds, wetlands and other features.

The combination of the two courses makes

Hartland Glen Golf Course the perfect place for league golfers, said Kouba, as players don't golf the same 9 holes twice in the same month.

Those aiming to improve their game can sharpen their skills at the practice facility. It includes a driving range, sand bunker, chipping green and putting greens.

Private and group lessons are also available while an on-site golf shop allows golfers to purchase everything they need.

In addition to its golfing opportunities, Hartland Glen boasts dining facilities. Its clubhouse has a full bar and grill with a variety of selections.

Grill and outing menus are offered. Both the interior and exterior of the clubhouse were renovated about five years ago. There is also a covered pavilion complete with a brick barbecue grill.

Hartland Glen is a popular place for golf outings as it can host up to 300 people. Its staff specializes in organizing golf outings and there are a number of options available for event organizers to choose from.

Kouba described Hartland Glen as having a private golf club feel at a public golf course price. He said the most expensive rate is $42 and there are some values to be found in coupons on the business' Web site, like Fairway Fridays, where the price for 18 holes of golf with a cart costs $20 on Fridays.

"Come out and experience it for yourself," said Kouba.
