Pro Shop Renovation

Thanks to the help of our members and staff we transformed part of the tennis shop into a gorgeous lounge area where members can gather together to watch the U.S. Open on a luxurious sofa while consuming coffee or adult beverages. The area also features the ever popular shared library space where members can grab a book from the shared library or leave a book for their peers to read. A special thanks to Bryant Wales, Carol Wales, Marsha Kelley, Rene Boven, Pete Boven, and Mary Crosswy for your efforts on this wonderful addition to our tennis community.

GOLF NEWS

Pro Tip from Josh Deal

One of the most overlooked parts of the golf swing is good hip movement. It starts with setup. We need to make sure our feet, shoulders, and hips are all parallel to the target line. As we begin the back swing, many amateurs make a great shoulder turn, but neglect a solid hip turn. Turning the hips to a 45 degree angle ensures a good coil and weight transfer. If we forget to turn out hips back we have initiated a swing that will be all arms lacking consistency and power. The final picture is maybe the most important. This picture shows a perfect release of the coil. The alignment add place on my hips has now turn to an angle perpendicular to my target line. I have completed my hip turn, left nothing in the tank. Using these three checkpoints to gauge your hip action in the golf swing will help you create more power, be more efficient, and ensure consistent contact!
